KELLER AND HECKMAN LLP'S TELECOMMUNICATIONS PRACTICE

Telecommunications is a core practice area of Keller and Heckman. We maintain a dynamic, full service telecommunications practice, meeting the diverse needs of our clients through expert, cost-effective service. We carefully manage our practice to ensure that our clients receive the maximum benefit of the skills and experience of our attorneys and licensing specialists.

Keller and Heckman has established one of the leading practices before the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) on wireless licensing and policy matters. We are recognized experts in fixed, mobile and broadband wireless matters. We represent a diverse mix of clients in increasingly frequent and aggressive enforcement actions initiated by the FCC. More recently, Keller and Heckman has developed leading national practices representing the interests of electric utilities in the areas of pole attachment negotiations, dispute resolution and policy matters. We also negotiate access, marketing, and bulk service agreements on behalf of owners of multiple dwelling units (MDUs) and planned retirement communities. In both areas, our clients are adverse to the major cable operators and telecommunications carriers.

Other clients include integrated petroleum companies, pipeline operators, other Fortune 1000 firms, specialized broadband and telecommunications services providers, entities involved in the direct broadcast satellite industry, and trade associations having substantial interests in domestic and international telecommunications policy matters.
